Overview: Community Collaborations International (CCI) takes a holistic approach to community recovery. CCI deploys volunteers where they are needed most and gets the most value out of each volunteer hour through effective management and comprehensive logistical support. The primary purpose of the project in Biloxi, MS is Gulf coast ecosystem restoration. Community service projects include; working with community-based programs that serve youth, homeless, elderly, and low-income members of the community.

Day-to-day: Volunteers will complete projects such as; shoreline restoration, native plant propagation, wildlife habitat improvement, dune restoration, storm water treatment, public land restoration, and invasive species removal.

The Nitty-Gritty Details: Group members will sleep in large bunk rooms. Some meals will be provided by the site, but participants may want to also purchase individual snacks for the week. Groups will also be given a budget with which to purchase food as needed.
