Overview: Medici Project serves to educate and expose individuals to the realities of human trafficking. Participants will work with local community organizations to understand the intricacies of human trafficking; from work being done to address traffickers, to support programs for survivors. Medici Project works to empower others to advocate for human trafficking.

Day-to-day: Participants will serve at various community agencies each day from approximately 9:00am – 4:00pm. Participants will assist the agencies with their current projects. This may include maintenance projects, and interacting with survivors of human trafficking.

The Nitty-Gritty Details: Housing at the church will require participants to bring their own bedding to sleep on the floor in the common area. Meals are not included by the sites, but the group will be given a small budget for groceries to use for meals throughout the week. Participants should plan to have additional funds for some meals.
